NEW U.S. PEACE BID IS MADE TO U.N.

FAULTY FLUE BLAMED — Sparks from cracks in a chimney were blamed for the fire which destroyed this home at 923 S. Clinton St. and left Mrs. Dorothy Fausnaugh and her son Roger "out in the cold" last night. The intense cold and high winds did little to ease the job of Circleville firefighters in dousing the blaze.

House Destroyed By Raging Fire

Fire raged through a home at 923 S. Clinton St., 11:30 p.m. Sunday leaving Dorothy Fausnaugh and her son, Roger, both homeless and without clothing or furniture.

Mrs. Fausnaugh, who was being visited by three grandchildren, was watching television when she saw sparks dropping from the ceiling near the chimney.

The entire attic area of the building was engulfed in flames when discovered.

Mrs. Fausnaugh awakened her grandchildren and got them safely from the building. Her had been completely burned.

The house was insured. However, Mrs. Fausnaugh had no insurance covering the contents.

The building was valued at $3,500 and the contents at $1,500.

The cause of the blaze was a faulty flue.

Circleville Fire Chief Bernard Wolf pointed out there were wide cracks in the chimney and because of yesterday's intense cold, the fire was probably heavier than usual. High winds last night fanned the blaze.

U.S. Unleashes Its Bombers Against Reds

Warplanes Hammer Bridges, Barges In North Viet Nam

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The United States unleashed its bombers against North Viet Nam today after holding off air attacks for 37 days while it tried vainly to bring the Communists to the peace table.

On the ground, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces stepped up their offensives against the Viet Cong, but the Communists inflicted heavy losses on a militia unit and Red guns hammered Allied positions.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes took the war back to North Viet Nam on White House orders prompted by Hanoi's refusal to talk peace.

The planes hit bridges, ferries, barges, warehouse areas and storage facilities well south of the Hanoi-Haiphong industrial area.

A U.S. spokesman said Navy pilots claimed destruction of a bridge about 10 miles southeast of Dong Hoi and damage to the approach to the Quang Khe ferry landing about 20 miles northwest of Dong Hoi.

Bad weather prevented estimates of the damage in other raids. Spokesmen declined to say how many sorties were flown or what types of bombs were dropped.

One Navy plane was shot down as the raiders encountered heavy ground fire. But a U.S. Air Force helicopter rescued the pilot unharmed under machine-gun fire. He was Lt. Cmdr. Sylvester Chumley of Lemoor, Calif.

Chumley's A4 Skyhawk jet went down about a mile off Dong Hoi. The Communists peppered the water around him.

'Cancer Cure' Experts Freed

CHICAGO (AP) — An ailing woman juror recovered sufficiently today for the resumption of deliberation on a verdict for the fourth promoter of Krebiozen.

The three codefendants of Dr. Stevan Durovic were acquitted Saturday of conspiracy, mail fraud and other charges in connection with their work with the drug taken by some cancer patients.

While the jury was studying evidence relating to Dr. Durovic Sunday, one of the jurors, Mrs. Lois Clark, 40, suffered an attack of asthma. She was given medical treatment.

The jury was brought to the U.S. District Courtroom of Judge Julius J. Hoffman this morning.

Excitement gripped the courtroom Saturday afternoon when Judge Hoffman called the jurors back to the seats from where they had heard nine months of testimony.

The jury foreman then handed forward a slip of paper that acquitted, on all counts, Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Marko Durovic and Dr. William F. P. Phillips.

The jurors said they were still deliberating the 40 charges against Dr. Durovic, 60, and against the Krebiozen Research Foundation.

Dr. Ivy, 72, is chief medical sponsor of Krebiozen and director of medical research at Roosevelt University. Marko Durovic, 64, is Stevan's brother and a lawyer; Dr. Phillips, 52, administered Krebiozen to cancer patients as a general practitioner.

The four were charged with mail fraud and conspiracy in the sale and promotion of Krebiozen. The trial, the longest in the history of Chicago's federal court, began April 28. It ended its ninth month Friday.

The acquittals came exactly four days to the minute that the jury began deliberating.

The jurors deliberated for three hours Sunday, then broke for lunch. After they returned, Mrs. Clark had the asthma attack.

LBJ Tells Why Attack Resumes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson made a new Vietnamese peace bid to the United Nations today a few hours after American bombers resumed air strikes against North Viet Nam.

The renewal of bombing "does not mean the end of our pursuit of peace," Johnson told the nation and the world in a special broadcast.

The President announced that he had directed Ambassador Arthur Goldberg to seek an immediate meeting of the U.N. Security Council in order to make a full report on the Vietnamese situation and to present a resolution for new action toward peace.

The resolution, the President said, "can open the way to the conference table."

"This report and this resolution," Johnson declared, "will be responsive to the spirit of the renewed appeal of Pope Paul; that appeal has our full sympathy."

... Hanoi Said 'Unyielding' In Reply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk disclosed today the United States offered to extend the bombing pause over North Viet Nam if the Communist leaders there would make a peace gesture in response to the U.S. peace offensive.

He told a news conference, however, that Hanoi's response had been "negative, harsh and unyielding."

"Hanoi was informed at an early stage of the suspension of bombing," Rusk told a news conference. "They were told that no decision had been made on the resumption of bombing."

"They were told that if Hanoi would reciprocate it would have a favorable effect on extending the suspension of the bombing. There was no ultimatum," Rusk said.

Rusk also said the United States made clear to Hanoi's leaders that it was prepared for a formal diplomatic conference, for informal discussions or for diplomatic contacts which would be kept secret.

Hanoi's response, he said, had been to denounce the whole effort as a fraud.

... Months of U.S. Efforts For Peace Are Shattered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Months of pondering how to bring peace to Viet Nam. Secret sessions with top U.S. strategists. Day-to-day decisions on withholding bombing. A flood of U.S. presidential envoys abroad. A Communist rebuff. A big debate at home.

These are major ingredients of the 37-day peace offensive which came to a shattering end today with President Johnson's order resuming the air strikes on North Viet Nam.

Here is a detailed look at what went on — backstage, sometimes in tight secrecy, as well as out in the open:

For the background, bark back to last spring.

On April 7, 1965, Johnson set forth, in a speech at Johns Hopkins University, his offer of "unconditional discussions" for a peaceful settlement. His April 7 terms remain basically the U.S. position today: the United States wants nothing except independence and security for South Viet Nam, and "will do everything necessary to reach that objective." The Reds denounced his proposal as a cover-up for more U.S. "aggression."

In May he ordered a five-day halt in air strikes on North Viet Nam to test further the Communist response. Hanoi refused even to receive a U.S. diplomatic note conveyed through the British.

Through the summer and into the fall critics of Johnson's Viet Nam policy, including Red regimes outside of Hanoi and Pe-king, contended the May pause had not been long enough to Johnson said he had ordered renewal of the bombing to save the lives of American, South Vietnamese and allied soldiers fighting Communist guerrilla forces in South Viet Nam. Those forces are supplied and reinforced by infiltration from the north.

He said he had carefully considered the counsel of his advisers.

"These advisers," the President said, "tell me that if continued immunity is given to all that supports North Vietnamese aggression, the cost in lives — Vietnamese, American and allied — will only be greatly increased."

In the light of the words and actions of the government in Hanoi, it is our clear duty to do what we can to limit these costs."

He said the United States does not regret its 37-day pause in the bombing of North Viet Nam — a pause that ended today. And, he declared:

"The end of the pause does not mean the end of our own pursuit of peace. That pursuit will be as determined and un- (Continued on Page 2)

More Ag Product Supports Awaited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman may decide this week whether he will try to hold the line on producer price supports this year on such items as dairy goods, soybeans, flaxseed, cotton seed, peanuts and dry beans.

The secretary already has taken steps to limit price advances on wheat, feed grains and some other products. He has sought to prevent undue advances in food prices that might trigger new wage demands by labor and encourage inflation.

Some producer groups are demanding that Freeman boost price guarantees for soybeans and dairy goods. The soybean crop is the fourth largest income maker for farmers.

Fatal Hit-Skip Driver Sought in Cincinnati

CINCINNATI (AP) — Police are looking for the hit-skip driver whose car struck and killed Raymond Mulryan, 40, of suburban Sycamore Township last weekend.

Near Zero Temperature Continues for Ohioans

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio's w-w-w-weather, and that farther east, had a silver lining Sunday night—for Buckeye hotel and motel business.

The closing of the Pennsylvania Turnpike sent many a motorist into overnight hibernation around Youngstown. Airline passengers jammed Dayton and Columbus as flights to Cleveland and storm-smitten Atlantic seaboard cities had to lay over.

Most of the Buckeye State escaped further snow on top of heavy accumulations of recent days but the northeast portion got more. And the rest of the state had to slip and slide on snow and ice packed hard by continuing zero-range temperatures.

Weather observers had forecast that Sunday night would be the coldest of the season, but they made a last-minute change that proved more accurate. Overnight low readings were generally above zero. Cincinnati had the lowest reading for a major city, 1 below zero.

Highs of 8-16 were predicted for today.

On Sunday morning, Cincinnati recorded the coldest weather in the state with -12 degrees. Dayton had -10, eclipsing a record for the date that had stood since Jan. 30, 1897.

Columbus—the Weather Bureau by accident, design or subconscious thought called it "COLDumbus" in one forecast—also had a Jan. 30 record of -5.

The mercury advanced only to the order of about 5 above at most spots Sunday afternoon. The blizzard, and extreme cold in other areas, contributed to at least 75 deaths from heart attacks, fires and high attacks in 16 states.

The severe storm swept up the coast over the weekend, leaving cold behind and virtually paralyzing travel in major cities of the populous Northeast, including the nation's capital.

Two states struck the hardest, Delaware and Virginia, declared a state of emergency. Two feet of snow fell in some parts of Virginia and National Guard units were ordered to help clear clogged highways in Delaware.

In northern and central Florida, the gigantic citrus crop was threatened by freezing temperatures.

Some Schools Closed

It's Still Brrrr On Local Scene

A frigid mass of Arctic air forced temperatures well below zero here during the weekend.

A record low of minus six degrees was recorded Sunday morning with daytime temperatures climbing to a mere seven above. The low here this morning was one degree below zero although 10-15 below had been predicted.

Accompanied by gusty winds and snow flurries, the weekend weather caused a rash of fires, frozen water pipes and cold noses.

Schools were closed in Pick-away County for the first time during the 1965-66 session due to the weather. Classes were called off in the Westfall and Logan Elm Districts in addition to Wayne Twp., part of the Circleville School System. City schools and Teays Valley High School were not greatly affected and classes met on schedule.

DRIFTING snow was blamed for all schools that were closed. In several rural areas, drifts caused roads to be impassable.

Highway crews worked throughout the weekend in an effort to keep primary byways open to traffic, in some instances the work was in vain. Both county and state highway departments reported that some roads were still on the "closed list" at noon today.

School administrators today indicated all schools will be open tomorrow.

City Water Department was flooded today with phone calls reporting "freeze-ups" of water lines. All pipes that were frozen were in private residences, a spokesman said and none were of a serious nature.

The subzero reading this morning was the fourth time this month the mercury dipped below zero. Last Monday morning was the coldest of the season at 11 degrees below.

Warmer temperatures can be expected tonight and tomorrow with "a few snow flurries." Low tonight has been forecast at 8-15 above with a high tomorrow in the low 20s.

Ex-Solon Hurls Rap at Coleman

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A former one-term state legislator, now guidance director at a Columbus high school, has challenged Democratic State Chairman William L. Coleman for the party's nomination for lieutenant governor in the May 3 primary.

Paul J. Lynch, 51, who served in the 103rd General Assembly, 1959-60, issued a blistering attack on Coleman in announcing his candidacy Saturday night.

"I cannot sit idly by and condone the brazen exploitation of the Democratic party of Ohio by a state chairman who is so completely immersed in personal self promotion," Lynch said,

2 Boys Admit Bombing of Tutor Homes

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Whetstone High School faculty breathed easier today with two youths who allegedly admitted throwing homemade bombs at teachers' homes in custody and awaiting Juvenile Court hearings this afternoon.

Police said the boys, both 16, told them it was they who had thrown or planted eight makeshift bombs at the homes of six teachers and Principal Don T. Harper over the past two weeks.

Arrested Saturday night and charged with incorrigibility, the youths were identified as sons of a paper company president and an Ohio Public Utilities Commission attorney.

Officers quoted the two as saying they had been "picked on" by the principal and the teachers at whose residences they allegedly set the charges.

Most of the bombs exploded. They were made of foot-long sections of copper tubing stuffed with gunpowder, birdshot, nails, lead slugs and other metal objects. A porch floor, mailbox, storm doors and windows were blown out, but no one was injured.

Union Shop Foes Still Stalemated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today goes into its second week of the union shop battle with neither side ready to budge from its position.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said his only plan for now was to keep before the Senate his motion to bring up the bill which would repeal section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act. That section authorizes states to outlaw union shop contracts.

Mansfield got an agreement for the Senate to convene two hours earlier than its usual noon meeting after a wrangle with the bill's opponents at a Saturday session. Because of the timing, Senate committees scheduled no hearings for the day.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said his forces would maintain their filibuster which has prevented a vote even on the preliminary motion to bring the bill before the Senate.

Dirksen said a break in the stalemate could come when the Armed Services Committee sends to the Senate floor an authorization bill in support of President Johnson's request for an additional $12.3 billion for the Vietnam war.

At that point, he said he would demand to know whether repeal of section 14B took precedence over the ends of U.S. troops in Viet Nam.

Jerrie Mock Planning Long-Distance Flight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Jerrie Mock, the first woman to fly solo around the world, is making plans for another long-distance journey.

The aviatrix said she may try for a long nonstop flight rather than a speed record.

Mrs. Mock said that the flight "would begin somewhere in the Pacific, but we don't know exactly where."

Alert Mother Praised By Deputy Sheriff

A level headed mother saved the lives of her two children and four foster children Sunday night when a wind-whipped fire destroyed a home in Harrison Twp.

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff John Wolford credited the alert thinking of Mrs. Gene Hess with preventing a complete disaster.

Mrs. Hess was sitting up at 11:47 p. m. drying her hair when she noticed a light in the room blinking. She got up to check the light, heard a strange noise coming from a bedroom occupied by two of the children.

She opened the door just as a flaming wall crumpled onto a bed in which the two youngsters were sleeping. She quickly jerked the mattress from the bed, dumping the two youngsters on the floor.

AFTER rushing them outside in their pajamas, she reentered the house, woke up the other four youngsters, carrying two of them from the flaming structure.

Nobody was burned seriously although the fire completely destroyed the house and its contents. The structure was valued at $14,000 by Harrison Twp. fire officials, and the contents at $6,300 by Mrs. Hess. The house belonged to Jay Hay, Harrison Twp. farmer, Deputy Wolford said.

A trailer owned by Leonard Osborne at Clem's Trailer Court in Harrison Twp., was damaged by fire. Mr. and Mrs. Osborne and two children were unharmed by the fire, although the two children were taken to Children's Hospital, Columbus, for treatment of smoke inhalation.

Man Defies Thug, Is Robbed, Shot

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A 35-year-old Tallmadge man was shot in the stomach when he refused to let a gunman take his 12-year-old son as a hostage during a service station robbery here, police reported.

The victim, Roy Cavin, was reported in satisfactory condition at Akron City Hospital.

He had stopped for gasoline at a service station Sunday when a gunman robbed the station of $54 and took $21 from Cavin.

The robber started to take Cavin's son, Michael, as a hostage and shot Cavin when he objected. The gunman escaped.

'Cancer Cure' Experts Freed

CHICAGO (AP) — An ailing woman juror recovered sufficiently today for the resumption of deliberation on a verdict for the fourth promoter of Krebiozen.

The three codefendants of Dr. Stevan Durovic were acquitted Saturday of conspiracy, mail fraud and other charges in connection with their work with the drug taken by some cancer patients.

While the jury was studying evidence relating to Dr. Durovic Sunday, one of the jurors, Mrs. Lois Clark, 40, suffered an attack of asthma. She was given medical treatment.

The jury was brought to the U.S. District Courtroom of Judge Julius J. Hoffman this morning.

Excitement gripped the courtroom Saturday afternoon when Judge Hoffman called the jurors back to the seats from where they had heard nine months of testimony.

The jury foreman then handed forward a slip of paper that acquitted, on all counts, Dr. Andrew C. Ivy, Marko Durovic and Dr. William F. P. Phillips.

The jurors said they were still deliberating the 40 charges against Dr. Durovic, 60, and against the Krebiozen Research Foundation.

Dr. Ivy, 72, is chief medical sponsor of Krebiozen and director of medical research at Roosevelt University. Marko Durovic, 64, is Stevan's brother and a lawyer; Dr. Phillips, 52, administered Krebiozen to cancer patients as a general practitioner.

The four were charged with mail fraud and conspiracy in the sale and promotion of Krebiozen. The trial, the longest in the history of Chicago's federal court, began April 28. It ended its ninth month Friday.

The acquittals came exactly four days to the minute that the jury began deliberating.

The jurors deliberated for three hours Sunday, then broke for lunch. After they returned, Mrs. Clark had the asthma attack.

Union Shop Foes Still Stalemated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate today goes into its second week of the union shop battle with neither side ready to budge from its position.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said his only plan for now was to keep before the Senate his motion to bring up the bill which would repeal section 14B of the Taft-Hartley Act. That section authorizes states to outlaw union shop contracts.

Mansfield got an agreement for the Senate to convene two hours earlier than its usual noon meeting after a wrangle with the bill's opponents at a Saturday session. Because of the timing, Senate committees scheduled no hearings for the day.

Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen said his forces would maintain their filibuster which has prevented a vote even on the preliminary motion to bring the bill before the Senate.

Dirksen said a break in the stalemate could come when the Armed Services Committee sends to the Senate floor an authorization bill in support of President Johnson's request for an additional $12.3 billion for the Vietnamese war.

At that point, he said he would demand to know whether repeal of section 14B took precedence over the ends of U.S. troops in Viet Nam.

Jerrie Mock Planning Long-Distance Flight

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. Jerrie Mock, the first woman to fly solo around the world, is making plans for another long-distance journey.

The aviatrix said she may try for a long nonstop flight rather than a speed record.

Mrs. Mock said that the flight "would begin somewhere in the Pacific, but we don't know exactly where."

It's Still Brrrrr On Local Scene

A frigid mass of Arctic air forced temperatures well below zero here during the weekend.

A record low of minus six degrees was recorded Sunday morning with daytime temperatures climbing to a mere seven above. The low here this morning was one degree below zero although 10-15 below had been predicted.

Accompanied by gusty winds and snow flurries, the weekend weather caused a rash of fires, frozen water pipes and cold noses.

Ohio Traffic Fatal to 15 On Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An auto drove onto a crossing Sunday near Kenton and into the path of a train. Of four car occupants, one survived.

Two autos entered a narrow bridge Saturday near Genoa and one drove into the other's path. Of six occupants, one survived.

The three deaths in the Ohio 31 car-train crash and the five fatalities in the Ohio 163 head-on collision accounted for more than half the known traffic toll for the state between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

The death count of 15 on a second successive weekend of snowy, icy travel conditions just about matched that of the last one, but there was less clear-cut evidence the weather was a factor this time.

The quintuple-fatality occurred in Ottawa County, where 16-year-old Toni Vass died in a hospital Sunday as the third victim of an auto collision near Port Clinton last Wednesday.

One fire death was reported over the weekend.

News of World in Brief

STEVENS Point, Wis. (AP)—The National Safety Council ran into problems today in attempts to start its annual skidding and tire-traction tests on ice.

It was just too cold.

Test director Gus Whitehurst said temperatures, ranging from a high of zero to a low of 19 below Sunday, made it impossible to prepare the necessary nine acres of smooth, slick ice and threatened to delay the tests.

"The water freezes before it can spread out," he explained.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court agreed today to a limited review of James R. Hoffa's conviction in 1964 on jury-tampering charges.

In a brief order, the court said it would hear the teamsters union president's appeal on one question alone. That is: "Whether evidence obtained by the government by means of deceptively placing a secret informer in the quarters and councils of a defendant during one criminal trial so violates the defendant's fourth, fifth and Sixth Amendment rights that suppression of such evidence is required in a subsequent trial of the same defendant on a different charge."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Cost of implementing the McCone commission recommendations to alleviate conditions that sparked last August's Watts riots is estimated at $22 million by city officials.

Mayor Samuel W. Yorty says City Administrator Erwin Piper estimated most of the amount could be footed with federal funds for the war on poverty. He said, however, city taxpayers might have to spend $1.4 million yearly if the recommendations are followed.

NEW YORK (AP)—Mayor John V. Lindsay went to present Bob Hope with the key to the city while Hope was in town Sunday to act as master of ceremonies for an eye-research charity benefit.

A search revealed the only keys to the city still had former Mayor Robert F. Wagner's name inscribed on them.

Aides finally tracked down an engraver who could inscribe names and a suitable legend on a desk set adorned by a small key.

WASHINGTON (AP)—Mrs. Mary E. Treadwell, 32, of Washington knew her time was due at 4:30 a.m. Sunday during Washington's 12-inch snowstorm. Neighbors called police.

A police car and Fire Department ambulance, dispatched to take Mrs. Treadwell to the hospital, got stuck on the city's snow-clogged streets.

Guns, Butter Both Assured U.S. Economy

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite uncertainties of the Viet Nam war, President Johnson during the week sketched a glowing picture of the nation's economy.

"The American economic miracle" will continue through 1966, he said.

He made the rosy prediction in his economic message to Congress on Thursday. However, the statement was laced with words of caution about inflation.

Earlier in the week, Johnson sent to Congress a record $112.8-billion budget for the 1967 fiscal year, beginning next July 1. It would provide not only for financing the war in Southeast Asia and usual domestic programs but would also accelerate development of the "Great Society."

The tone was that the economy is strong enough so that Americans can have both ample guns and butter.

In the economic message, the President said: "Demand will continue to grow rapidly in 1966 and production will respond. The vigor of investment spending demonstrates strong business confidence. The rising defense needs of the federal government are an important force in the economy. State and local purchases will keep moving ahead. Rising consumer incomes will again largely be devoted to expenditures for better living."

He gave this outline of government economic policy: "To attain full employment without inflation — to use fiscal monetary policies to help match total demand to our growing production potential — to maintain and enhance healthy competition — to achieve national purposes as far as possible by enlisting the voluntary cooperation of business, labor and other groups."

Johnson told Congress that demand and production booms should add $46.5 billion to the gross national product, NP — total of all goods and services — increasing it to a record $722 billion in the next fiscal year.

He predicted that the employment rolls will increase by 2.5 million and that the unemployment rate will drop to 4.1 percent of the labor force by the end of the year.

The President said the economic cost of the Viet Nam war "imposes an unbearable burden on our resources." He added that production for Viet Nam accounts for less than 1 1/2 percent of the NP.

"Perhaps our most serious economic challenge in 1966," he said, "will be to preserve the essential stability of costs and prices which has contributed significantly to our balanced progress."

In a report accompanying the President's message, his Council of Economic Advisers cautioned labor and management: "Both should reflect on the fact that if their actions create an inflationary spiral, the most likely outcome will be restrictive fiscal and monetary policies which will aim to stop further price increases but will in the process also reduce output, cut back profits and reduce employment."

The administration's worry about inflation was reflected in the steepest December climb in living costs in 15 years.

The Labor Department reported prices of food, clothing, housing, transportation and medical care rose four-tenths of one percent last month.

Many Attend Presbyterian Dedication

Approximately 300 persons were on hand for Sunday afternoon's dedication of a new Christian Education Building at the Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Henry Walters, pastor, rated the turnout "excellent" even though weather was of the frigid nature.

Rev. Walters said the afternoon's program was conducted on schedule. Participants included members of the congregation, program guests and representatives from other denominations.

Guided tours through the 15-room structure were conducted by youth groups of the church. Sunday School teachers were stationed at respective areas to explain how the new facilities apply to their functions.

The dedication sermon was presented by the Rev. Ben Judd Jr., of the Chillicothe Presbyterian Church.

Most Ohio College Men Ready If Draft Calls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio college students reacted without much surprise and not much criticism, for the most part, to the weekend announcement that draft boards will tighten up on student deferments.

"I don't want to go, but if I have no choice, I'm not going to complain," said 19-year-old Barry Schwartz, a sophomore at the University of Cincinnati.

His statement pretty well summed up the views of a majority of students asked by the Associated Press about their reaction to the tighter draft policy.

Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey,

national Selective Service director, said in announcing the new criteria that they will be similar to those employed during the Korean conflict.

Under that system, some 600,000 youths were given a Selective Service college qualification test. Class standing also counted. At the end of a college year a freshman had to be in the upper one-half of his class, a sophomore in the upper two-thirds, and a junior in the upper three-fourths.

"A lot of people have immature attitudes in college," said James Perk, a junior at Ohio State University from Cleveland. "They are really not going at their studies very hard. Perhaps a scare like this would be what is necessary to get these people on the ball."

"I don't have any objection to the test idea," Richard Vandam from Sheffield Lake said. "A lot of people don't belong in college. If they aren't qualified to stay here, they shouldn't."

A different view of the test idea was voiced by James Anderson, a senior physics major at Ohio State, from Columbus. "It is pretty frightening," he said, "to think that a person's professional future might be determined by a bad day on an Army test."

Some students spoke vehemently against the draft. "I think the draft denies a person his rights, his own ethical beliefs and courses of action," said Roger Wilkins, an OSU junior philosophy major from Seville.

Ohio Parochial Pupils Already Use Public Bus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thousands of parochial school pupils already are riding public school buses even though a new state law requiring their transportation doesn't become effective for nine months.

At least six more school districts begin transporting private and parochial school pupils with the second semester. More than a dozen districts have been carrying parochial pupils for years—some have done it for 25 years.

Most public school systems, however, don't plan to offer bus transportation to non-public students until they have to, an Associated Press survey found. Most also are waiting for guidelines from the State Education Department before they begin making detailed plans for the change.

Also awaited is a decision on a court suit challenging constitutionality of the law, passed by the last legislature.

The Education Department estimates that 14,000 parochial students already ride public school buses. These public districts could not get state aid for transporting those students, however. Under the new law, they will get state funds for parochial students just as they do for public school pupils.

The amount schools get varies from 27 to 82 percent of the total cost of transportation. Last year it averaged $27 per pupil.

Education Department transportation specialists are just now beginning to plan for transportation of private and parochial pupils.

Some school districts also are making plans, Columbus and Chillicothe administrators, for instance, have begun informal talks with Roman Catholic officials.

It seems certain many school districts will have to spend more money to transport parochial pupils. Massillon, for example, estimates it will need for or five more buses.

Strongsville, a Cleveland suburb, estimates it will spend $4,000 more to transport 480 pupils to St. Ambrose Catholic School.

Berea, North Royalton, Brecksville and Brunswick schools in the Cleveland area and the Northwest District near Massillon are beginning parochial school business with the second semester.

Many Lorain County schools and some in other areas have been transporting pupils—public or parochial—for years. Ten of the 15 systems in Lorain County, for instance, have offered transportation to parochial students for some time.

North Canton buses have carried pupils to a Catholic school for 25 years.

"We have always picked up the children when they are on our regular routes and when there has been room on the buses," said North Canton Superintendent E. R. Malon. "This was started when North Canton was a very small community and there never has been any problem."

Still pending is a suit filed Oct. 11 in Franklin County Common Pleas Court contending that using public funds to transport parochial students is unconstitutional. The State Attorney General's Office is defending the State Board of Education in that case. There has been no indication when some action might be taken in the case, backed by the Ohio Civil Liberties Union.

Some areas don't face any problem. Mount Vernon's public and parochial schools, for instance, plan to continue their present separate bus systems. And some others areas, such as Wilmington and Washington Court House, have no parochial schools.

U.S. Improves Its ICBMs

Enemy Defense Penetration Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission disclosed today the United States may be close to significant breakthroughs in enhancing the powers of American nuclear — tipped intercontinental missiles to penetrate an enemy's antimissile defenses.

It did so in a report saying also that:

1. America already leads the world in the "nuclear defense" field;
2. Improved nuclear weapons of various types including "demolition munitions" such as atomic land mines were added last year to the stockpile; and
3. The nation's nuclear weapons are even now working toward developing even more advanced types.

The AEC's annual report to Congress did not specifically describe the latter.

But apparently they entail still further progress toward assuring that American missiles — launched after an attack on the United States — would at least partially be able to foil, decoy and penetrate enemy countermeasures — including their own missiles, and ground-based electronic detection devices.

The AEC put it this way: "A major weapons development objective has been the improvement of the penetration capability of strategic missile warheads by further decreasing warhead vulnerability to advance enemy antiballistic missile countermeasures."

"Laboratory computations and experiments have identified several possible designs toward achieving these improvements. The designs are under further study, with the purpose of producing — within any given set of limitations in size, weight and (explosive) yield — a system of hardness balanced against all possible threats."

"Hardness" does not refer to the mere metallic hardness of a warhead.

And, while the AEC defines it only in general terms, it presumably refers to such things as the ability of a warhead to prevent its own premature detonation in flight by the nuclear "rays" or blast and heat effects of a nuclear missile detonated by the defender.

remitting as the pressure of or military strength on the field of battle.

"He will present a full report on the situation in Viet Nam and a resolution which can open the way to the conference table. This report and this resolution will be responsive to the spirit of the renewed appeal of Pope Paul; that appeal has our full sympathy."

Johnson spoke on live radio and television from a theater in the White House less than 10 hours after the first word came through that the United States has begun bombing North Vietnamese targets.

He said he had asked Secretary of State Dean Rusk to give this country and the world a comprehensive account of diplomatic efforts made over the last five weeks "in our continuing policy of peace and freedom for South Viet Nam."

The President, in his role as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, said that, at his direction, "U.S. aircraft have resumed action in North Viet Nam. They struck lines of supply which support the continuing movement of men and arms against the people and government of South Viet Nam."

Johnson said that from the start air strikes have been aimed at military targets and have been controlled carefully. But he said that those that direct and supply aggression have no claim to immunity from military retaliation.

The Vietnamese, American and allied troops battling in South Viet Nam — with increasing strength and success, Johnson said, want peace as much as anybody here at home.

"But while there is no peace," the President said, "they are entitled to the full support of American strength and American determination. We will give both."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cost of implementing the McCone commission recommendations to alleviate conditions that sparked last August's Watts riots is estimated at $22 million by city officials.

Mayor Samuel W. Yorty says City Administrator Erwin Piper estimated most of the amount could be footed with federal funds for the war on poverty. He said, however, city taxpayers might have to spend $14 million yearly if the recommendations are followed.

The two most expensive suggestions, Yorty said Saturday, were the hiring of 2,000 jobless persons after individual training and hiring another 1,500 persons without training.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor John V. Lindsay wanted to present Bob Hope with the key to the city while Hope was in town Sunday to act as master of ceremonies for an eye-research charity benefit.

A search revealed the only keys to the city still had former Mayor Robert F. Wagner's name inscribed on them.

Alides finally tracked down an engraver who could inscribe names and a suitable legend on a desk set adorned by a small key.

There was one other hitch. Lindsay didn't make it because of a snowstorm.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Mary E. Treadwell, 32, of Washington knew her time was due at 4:30 a.m. Sunday during Washington's 12-inch snowstorm. Neighbors called police.

A police car and Fire Department ambulance, dispatched to take Mrs. Treadwell to the hospital, got stuck on the city's snow-clogged streets.

Another alert was sent. A fire truck reached the Treadwell home by 11 a.m. but became stuck in front of her house.

While neighbors cleared a path, firemen began carrying Mrs. Treadwell to an intersection where an ambulance was waiting.

The baby, Allison, was born at 12:30 p.m. a few blocks from the Treadwell home. A half hour later both mother and baby were taken to the hospital in good condition.

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Ailing President Cemal Gursel's departure for Washington has been delayed until Wednesday because of bad weather, government sources said today.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Twenty-five Harvard medical students say their lectures are dull and a waste of time. So they're being excused from class — and told to study on their own.

"The lecture system just doesn't work out," says Andrew Weil, 23, of Philadelphia, a second-year student at the Harvard Medical School.

"The psychological effect of sitting in a class and being lectured and 'labeled' at is to make you passive, dull, lose motivation and curiosity," he said.

Guns, Butter Both Assured U.S. Economy

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite uncertainties of the Viet Nam war, President Johnson during the week sketched a glowing picture of the nation's economy. "The American economic miracle" will continue through 1966, he said.

He made the rosy prediction in his economic message to Congress on Thursday. However, the statement was laced with words of caution about inflation.

Earlier in the week, Johnson sent to Congress a record $112.8-billion budget for the 1967 fiscal year, beginning next July 1. It would provide not only for financing the war in Southeast Asia and usual domestic programs but would also accelerate development of the "Great Society."

The tone was that the economy is strong enough so that Americans can have both ample guns and butter.

In the economic message, the President said: "Demand will continue to grow rapidly in 1966 and production will respond. The vigor of investment spending demonstrates strong business confidence. The rising defense needs of the federal government are an important force in the economy. State and local purchases will keep moving ahead. Rising consumer incomes will again largely be devoted to expenditures for better living."

He gave this outline of government economic policy: "To attain full employment without inflation — to use fiscal monetary policies to help match total demand to our growing production potential — to maintain and enhance healthy competition — to achieve national purposes as far as possible by enlisting the voluntary cooperation of business, labor and other groups."

Johnson told Congress that demand and production booms should add $46.5 billion to the gross national product, NP — total of all goods and services — increasing it to a record $722 billion in the next fiscal year.

He predicted that the employment rolls will increase by 2.5 million and that the unemployment rate will drop to 4.1 per cent of the labor force by the end of the year.

The President said the economic cost of the Viet Nam war "imposes no unbearable burden on our resources." He added that production for Viet Nam accounts for less than 1 1/2 per cent of the NP.

"Perhaps our most serious economic challenge in 1966," he said, "will be to preserve the essential stability of costs and prices which has contributed significantly to our balanced progress."

In a report accompanying the President's message, his Council of Economic Advisers cautioned labor and management: "Both should reflect on the fact that if their actions create an inflationary spiral, the most likely outcome will be restrictive fiscal and monetary policies which will aim to stop further price increases but will in the process also reduce output, cut back profits and reduce employment."

The administration's worry about inflation was reflected in the steepest December climb in living costs in 15 years.

Most Ohio College Men Ready If Draft Calls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Ohio college students reacted without much surprise and not much criticism, for the most part, to the weekend announcement that draft boards will tighten up on student deferments.

"I don't want to go, but if I have no choice, I'm not going to complain," said 19-year-old Barry Schwartz, a sophomore at the University of Cincinnati.

His statement pretty well summed up the views of a majority of students asked by the Associated Press about their reaction to the tighter draft policy. Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national Selective Service director, said in announcing the new criteria that they will be similar to those employed during the Korean conflict.

Under that system, some 600,000 youths were given a Selective Service college qualification test. Class standing also counted. At the end of a college year a freshman had to be in the upper one-half of his class, a sophomore in the upper two-thirds, and a junior in the upper three-fourths.

"A lot of people have immature attitudes in college," said James Perk, a junior at Ohio State University from Cleveland. "They are really not going at their studies very hard. Perhaps a scare like this would be what is necessary to get these people on the ball."

"I don't have any objection to the test idea," Richard Vanderman from Sheffield Lake said. "A lot of people don't belong in college. If they aren't qualified to stay here, they shouldn't."

A different view of the test idea was voiced by James Anderson, a senior physics major at Ohio State, from Columbus. "It is pretty frightening," he said, "to think that a person's professional future might be determined by a bad day on an Army test."

Some students spoke vehemently against the draft. "I think the draft denies a person his rights, his own ethical beliefs and courses of action," said Roger Wilkins, an OSU junior philosophy major from Seville.

for 35 minutes as he waited to be rescued.

"I'm glad to see you guys. Now, can you turn off that machine-gun fire?" Chumley told his rescuers. The rescue plane was piloted by Lt. Col. Robert E. Freshwater of Canton, Ohio.

Resumption of the bombing had been expected for several days because of repeated statements from Washington that the halt in the strikes had failed to bring a favorable response from North Viet Nam.

Allied intelligence reports said the North Vietnamese made use of the bombing lull to rebuild roads, railways and bridges destroyed by U.S. planes in the past year. Aerial photographs revealed pontoon bridges strung across rivers, and heavy traffic has been spotted moving toward South Viet Nam over the past two weeks.

On the ground, the Viet Cong backed by regulars of the North Vietnamese forces were goaded into action by Allied troops who have penetrated Communist hideouts in the central coastal plains which had not been disturbed for 15 years.

Operation Masher, the U.S. 1st Cavalry's hedge-hopping push around Bong Son, about 300 miles northeast of Saigon, was heavily engaged for the fifth straight day in a firefight the Viet Cong used as a withdrawal action.

A storm of automatic fire and mortar shelling struck a battalion of troops at 6 a.m. and lasted for an hour. A spokesman said the Viet Cong used the barrage as cover to slip out of what could have been a death trap.

U.S. Improves Its ICBMs

Enemy Defense Penetration Seen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission disclosed today the United States may be close to significant breakthroughs in enhancing the powers of American nuclear — tipped intercontinental missiles to penetrate an enemy's antimissile defenses.

It did so in a report saying also that:

1. America already leads the world in the "nuclear defense" field;
2. Improved nuclear weapons of various types including "demolition munitions" such as atomic land mines were added last year to the stockpile; and
3. The nation's nuclear weapons are even now working toward developing even more advanced types.

The AEC's annual report to Congress did not specifically describe the latter.

But apparently they entail still further progress toward assuring that American missiles — launched after an attack on the United States — would at least partially be able to foil, decoy and penetrate enemy countermeasures — including their own missiles, and ground-based electronic detection devices.

The AEC put it this way: "A major weapons development objective has been the improvement of the penetration capability of strategic missile warheads by further decreasing warhead vulnerability to advance enemy antiballistic missile countermeasures."

"Laboratory computations and experiments have identified several possible designs toward achieving these improvements. The designs are under further study, with the purpose of producing — within any given set of limitations in size, weight and (explosive) yield — a system of hardness balanced against all possible threats."

"Hardness" does not refer to the mere metallic hardness of a warhead.

And, while the AEC defines it only in general terms, it presumably refers to such things as the ability of a warhead to prevent its own premature detonation in flight by the nuclear "rays" or blast and heat effects of a nuclear missile detonated by the defender.

remitting as the pressure of or military strength on the field of battle.

"In our continuing pursuit of peace, I have instructed Ambassador (Arthur) Goldberg to ask for immediate meeting of the United Nations Security Council.

"He will present a full report on the situation in Viet Nam and a resolution which can open the way to the conference table. This report and this resolution will be responsive to the spirit of the renewed appeal of Pope Paul; that appeal has our full sympathy."

Johnson spoke on live radio and television from a theater in the White House less than 10 hours after the first word came through that the United States has begun bombing North Vietnamese targets.

He said he had asked Secretary of State Dean Rusk to give this country and the world a comprehensive account of diplomatic efforts made over the last five weeks "in our continuing policy of peace and freedom for South Viet Nam."

The President, in his role as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, said that, at his direction, "U.S. aircraft have resumed action in North Viet Nam. They struck lines of supply which support the continuing movement of men and arms against the people and government of South Viet Nam."

Johnson said that from the start air strikes have been aimed at military targets and have been controlled carefully. But he said that those that direct and supply aggression have no claim to immunity from military retaliation.

The Vietnamese, American and allied troops battling in South Viet Nam — with increasing strength and success, Johnson said, want peace as much as anybody here at home.

"But while there is no peace," the President said, "they are entitled to the full support of American strength and American determination. We will give both."

Johnson said that from the start air strikes have been aimed at military targets and have been controlled carefully. But he said that those that direct and supply aggression have no claim to immunity from military retaliation.

Several officers from the local Hall - Adkins Post were on hand Sunday to hear an address by American Legion Commander L. Eldon James during the Ohio Legion's annual Mid-Winter Conference in Columbus.

Nearly 1,000 legionnaires heard commander James describe his recent trip to Viet Nam. Attending from Circleville were: Harold Hill, past post commander and present 7th District commander; Roger L. Smith, past post and 7th District commander; Richard McAbee, past 7th District commander; Floyd Darst, post sergeant - at - arms and Walter Pickel Jr., post adjutant and Department assistant sergeant-at-arms.

The Legion Chief, making his only official visit to Ohio, is spearheading a fund campaign within the huge veterans organization to help alleviate the suffering of South Viet Nam civilians as a result of Viet Cong atrocities. The American Legion Viet Nam Relief Fund is primarily designed as an instrument to aid the GI's fighting in that country by gaining the confidence of the civilian population, in addition to its humanitarian purpose.

Other features of the Conference were a model religious emphasis program stressing the importance of the Legion's "Service To God And Country" movement, an outstanding flag talk and an address by Dr. Carl C. Byers of the General Motors Corporation speaking staff.

Hall-Adkins Officers at Conference

Several officers from the local Hall - Adkins Post were on hand Sunday to hear an address by American Legion Commander L. Eldon James during the Ohio Legion's annual Mid-Winter Conference in Columbus.

Nearly 1,000 legionnaires heard commander James describe his recent trip to Viet Nam. Attending from Circleville were: Harold Hill, past post commander and present 7th District commander; Roger L. Smith, past post and 7th District commander; Richard McAbee, past 7th District commander; Floyd Darst, post sergeant-at-arms and Walter Pickel Jr., post adjutant and Department assistant sergeant-at-arms.

The Legion Chief, making his only official visit to Ohio, is spearheading a fund campaign within the huge veterans organization to help alleviate the suffering of South Viet Nam civilians as a result of Viet Cong atrocities. The American Legion Viet Nam Relief Fund is primarily designed as an instrument to aid the GI's fighting in that country by gaining the confidence of the civilian population, in addition to its humanitarian purpose.

Other features of the Conference were a model religious emphasis program stressing the importance of the Legion's "Service To God And Country" movement, an outstanding flag talk and an address by Dr. Carl C. Byers of the General Motors Corporation speaking staff.

37-Day Peace Offensive Brought to Shattering End by President

Johnson reached no decision at the time. He sent his top advisers back to Washington with instructions to weigh the pros and cons. The chief executive continued to think about the matter during his weeks of convalescence at his ranch home following his gall bladder-kidney stone operation.

On Dec. 7 Johnson went into the question intensively during another conference with key aides. At this ranch session were McNamara, just back from Saigon; Rusk, Undersecretary of State George W. Ball; Bundy and his deputy, Robert Komer; and presidential assistants Bill D. Moyers and Joseph A. Califano Jr.

One of the alternatives debated at the Dec. 7 session was a bombing pause early in 1966, perhaps coinciding with the customary lunar New Year cease-fire due around Jan. 21. The Communist Viet Cong had already proposed a Christmas truce.

Johnson made no decision at the time but outlined his general purpose in a speech he delivered by telephone two days later to the AFL-CIO convention in San Francisco. Voicing U.S. determination "to turn back that aggression" in Viet Nam, he added: "At the same time, we are equally determined that every prospect for peace be exhausted before other hard steps are taken."

After returning to Washington Dec. 13 for a series of meetings with important foreign visitors — the leaders of Pakistan, Britain and West Germany — Johnson held more secret sessions with his Viet Nam strategists. Out of these came a decision to propose a Christmas time ceasefire.

The cease-fire order issued Dec. 22 included instructions not to resume on-the-ground fighting in South Viet Nam after Christmas unless the Communists fired first. This was quickly settled by Viet Cong attacks even before the 30-hour ceasefire period was over.

The Dec. 22 order also halted bombing of North Viet Nam targets with the start of the ceasefire. Dec. 24. But it did not specify when to resume the air strikes. On that, Johnson reserved judgment from day to day even after the ground combat flared up again.

In pondering his future course Johnson, back in Texas for the holidays, was influenced by domestic reaction to the lull and by appeals from world figures. He was impressed by a peace appeal from Pope Paul VI. At home Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana was also calling for a lull well beyond Christmas.

Christmas fell on Saturday. With the ground fighting flaring up again, Johnson held off a resumption of the bombing on Sunday Dec. 26 and again on Monday Dec. 27.

Monday night he held long-distance strategy talks by telephone with his top advisers and made up his mind to make the most of this opportunity: he would prolong the bombing pause for a while and put into motion a full-fledged diplomatic offensive.

On Tuesday Dec. 28 the telephone was ringing again, and Johnson was on it to start a spectacular run of special presidential envoys to 40 capitals over the ensuing three weeks.

A call to roving Ambassador W. Averell Harriman put him on a special plane to Warsaw that night instead of the bridge game he had scheduled at home. Harriman finally got back to Washington Jan. 19 after seeing leaders in 11 countries around the world.

U.N. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg got his call while relaxing on a beach in the Bahamas. A presidential jet whisked him to New York to talk to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant that night, then on to Rome to meet with the Pope and Italian leaders.

Bundy flew to Ottawa, Undersecretary of State Thomas C. Mann to Mexico, Assistant Secretary G. Mennen Williams around Africa. The scope of a previously scheduled trip by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to Asia was expanded.

At the United Nations Goldberg appealed to all members of the world organization to use their influence to bring North Viet Nam to the negotiating table, and at other points around the world regularly accredited U.S. diplomats were presenting the U.S. position to their opposite number.

At one capital — Rangoon — the American met directly with a Hanoi representative for a few minutes and handed him the U.S. message. The North Vietnamese accepted it without commenting on its substance.

The substance of Johnson's diplomatic communications was a 14-point sum-up of the American position as it had been put forward over the preceding months. This included the offer of unconditional discussions, affirmation of the Geneva agreements on Southeast Asia and a willingness to withdraw U.S. forces from South Viet Nam once that country is freed from "external interference."

At the beginning, Johnson kept his peace campaign plans under one of the tightest security wraps ever imposed in Washington. There was no pre-announcement of the prolonged bombing halt, or of the travels by presidential emissaries.

Most State Department officials were kept in the dark about the peace drive until after it was under way. Then after New Year's they were told not to comment to newsmen on Communist statements about Johnson's actions. The administration wanted to keep a policy control on what it would rate as a responsive — favorable or otherwise — from the Reds.

The Communists meantime were gearing up their propaganda for assaults on the Johnson campaign. At first their output continued the previous barrage of general denunciations of U.S. "imperialist aggression" in Viet Nam. Later it became more specific.

"U.S. ruling circles speak of peace but actually step up war," North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh declared in a Dec. 31 New Year's message.

"Monsters and freaks of all descriptions are scurrying hither and thither and raising a lot of dust with their sinister activities," according to a Jan. 2 dispatch quoting the official Chinese Communist party organ, Peking People's Daily.

Moscow's Pravda the same day accused the United States of planning to expand the war.

In the face of the Communist crescendo, the Johnson administration for a while took the position that no meaningful response had yet been received from the other side.

On Jan. 12 the President reported on his peace drive in his State of the Union message: "So far we have received no response to prove either success or failure."

He also injected another ingredient into the U.S. proposal by saying, "We will respond if others reduce their use of force."

During the following week the State Department began sending to interested foreign governments messages recapitulating the peace efforts, surveying for any hopeful response from Hanoi and implying that the bombing would be resumed if none was forthcoming.

It was during this week that the ground fire operations in South Viet Nam halted for their second cease-fire, this for the Jan. 20-23 New Year holiday.

On Jan. 21 a negative report came from Rusk, who had just returned from a quick Asian trip, including a talk with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin at Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri's funeral in India. Rusk said there had been no "encouraging" response, only "bitter invective" from Hanoi.

Rusk said the Communists appeared to be preparing for a bitter military effort after the New Year lull. During the supposed cease-fire, he reported two days later, the Reds continued their infiltration from the North and made many attacks.

While some foreign governments indicated they hoped for a lengthy bombing halt, conflicting views at home were pressing on the President.

On Jan. 22 senators made public testimony by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, that "if you stop bombing North Viet Nam, in effect you throw one of your blue chips for negotiation over your shoulder."

On the same day Johnson replied to 76 Democratic House members who had asked him to persevere in his peace offensive. The President said that while the peace effort will continue "the heavy weight of evidence which has accumulated in the last month" indicates continued "aggressiveness" by North Viet Nam.

"It is increasingly clear that we have had only a hostile response to the present pause in bombing," he said.

Johnson summoned congressional leaders to the White House late in the afternoon of Jan. 25. At this secret mission, attended by the government's diplomatic, military and intelligence chiefs, the key legislators were given intelligence reports of a North Vietnamese buildup and infiltration during the bombing lull.

Johnson spoke to the legislators of the agony and loneliness of presidential decision making. He read passages from Bruce Catton's book, "Never Call Retreat," on how President Abraham Lincoln faced divided counsel. He said he would listen to everyone but decide what he felt best. He asked one administration official to make a case for resuming the bombing, another to make the case against.

Of the 20 senior senators and House members present only two, Mansfield and Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., were on the record for continuing the pause. An Associated Press poll of the Senate's 100 members found that of 50 willing to say, 25 senators favored renewing the bombings at this point and 25 were against.

Johnson continued to meet frequently with his top strategists. He sought counsel from friends and prominent citizens outside of government. The debate rolled on.

On Jan. 27, 16 Democratic senators sent the President a letter supporting earlier calls by Mansfield, Fulbright and Sen.

George D. Aikden, R-Vt., for a continuation of the bombing pause.

The senators pleaded for further consultation on the decision whether to resume air strikes.

One of the signers, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., said he did not consider the Aug. 10, 1964, congressional resolution that gave Johnson broad powers to repel armed aggression on U.S. soldiers in Viet Nam "as a general endorsement of our Viet Nam policy."

Johnson dismissed the senators' appeal the next day. He cited the 1964 resolution and said, "I continue to be guided in these matters (Viet Nam policy) by the resolution of Congress."

Do children have the same blood type as their parents? Children may inherit one of the blood types of their parents. However, children can also inherit another, different blood type, which their parents have carried in the genetic background.

The major blood groups are A, AB, B and O. When both parents are O, children are O, never A, AB or B.

When parents are O and A, the children are O and A, never B or AB.

Similar combinations, 10 in all, can produce certain blood groups and eliminate others.

These major groups and smaller subgroups can sometimes be used legally to prove or disprove paternity.

What is Addison's Disease?
The adrenal glands lie closely attached to the kidneys. The hormones produced by the adrenal gland are important to many of the vital functions of the body.

The adrenal gland is divided into two parts, the cortex and the medulla. Each part produces a different hormone. Addison's Disease, named after the scientist who first reported it, is a deficiency of the cortex part of the gland.

The hormone manufactured in the cortex of the adrenal is responsible for storage and use of proteins, sugars and fats. It also is involved in the reactions to physical and emotional injury and stresses.

The accumulation of fluids and minerals in the body is related to the normal function of the adrenal glands.

In Addison's Disease there are many diffuse symptoms that interfere with normal activity.

Addison's Disease, one a dreaded one, now can be kept in control by the use of cortisone, one of the major hormones of the adrenal gland.

When blood is coughed up it is always a sign of serious disease?

A cough can originate from a tickle in the back of the throat, from an irritation of the larynx, trachea or the bronchial tubes.

Blood in the sputum can, therefore, come from any of these areas.

A tiny broken blood vessel in the nose, throat and sinuses can trickle down and then be coughed up.

Blood in the sputum can be found in severe bronchitis or pneumonia, tuberculosis and with tumors of the lungs.

In most instances, a small amount of blood coughed up does not suggest serious disease. Nevertheless, the cause of all persistent bleeding must be pursued until it is definitely known. X-rays of the chest with special dyes can reveal important information about the lungs and bronchial structure.

Children with poor speech progress should have their hearing tested.

Best Tranquilizer: Take a Walk

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

In this age of anxiety one out of 12 Americans takes tranquilizers. We also spend about $70 million a year on sleeping pills.

But many doctors think you can calm down just as well—and save money—by just going for a brisk three to five-mile walk.

Before the rise of dentistry, people often went to blacksmiths to get their teeth pulled or treated.

A five-foot electric eel has all its vital organs in the first foot of body length. The other four feet contain nearly 6,000 electrical cells, each of which can generate one-tenth of a volt.

Jesus Christ and his followers spoke and wrote in Aramaic, the language of a nomadic desert people. Ultimately this tongue was displaced by Arabic in biblical lands.

Quotable notables: "Perhaps man, having remade his environment, will turn around at last and begin to remake himself"—Will Durant.

If you have an ulcer, better cut down on those highballs. It has been found that ulcers heal more quickly among those who don't drink.

In bullfighting if you don't die young you can die rich. One of the most unorthodox performers today, Manuel Benitez, known as "El Cordobes" and "the Beatnik Bullfighter," earns an estimated $2 million a year.

The burden of the presidency takes an increasing toll. The U.S. presidents who served in this century averaged 11 years less than their normal life expectancy for the age at which they took office.

A kind of Roman lottery was the forerunner of our St. Valentine's day. Celebrated on Feb. 15, it was called the Feast of Lupercalia. A young Roman man drew blindly from a container the name of an unmarried girl. They became sweethearts for the year, and exchanged gifts.

One out of every six licensed drivers is involved in an accident each year. The chances are, if you drive regularly, you will have some 10 traffic mishaps during your career behind the wheel.

Worth remembering: "You wouldn't worry what people think about you if you knew how seldom they do."

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — This February will start out with two strikes on it — and almost every February is a trying enough month for production, distribution and retail trade. Many businessmen would be perfectly willing just to skip it.

Weather often snarls industry and transportation and plays hob with store traffic. Retail trade usually is at a crawl anyway, being in the doldrums between the January clearance sales and the spring and Easter shopping promotions.

This February could be even more of a question mark — and a pain.

For one thing, there's the uncertainty of what will happen in Viet Nam — and what that will do to government programs at home and to private business and consumer plans.

For another, there's the doubt raised by the new federal spending policies — more for both military and civilian programs — without any real certainty of steering clear of an inflation which could send the already fast rising cost of living on a real toll.

Then there's the untested new climate on the eve of prosperity's birthday. The last recession hit bottom in February 1961. This February the economy is due to get set for its sixth year of climb.

But suddenly the atmosphere is changed. Government officials talk more now of restraining speculation and inflation, where for five years they talked only of stimulating economic growth.

Businessmen talk now of shortages of skilled labor here and there, when a year ago they were talking of the hard core of unemployment — now pretty well dissolved.

Factory managers talk of shortages of some materials — and soaring prices —and of attempted price increases which the government won't allow.

February might also see the hardening of battle lines between the government and some union leaders over the wage guidelines. Washington wants to hold wage increases down to keep from pushing prices up.

Also, for many a citizen is the current wonderment about what is going on down in Wall Street. When will the stock market get off dead center and start moving definitely one way or the other? And what is the meaning of all that heavy trading in a trend?

Right now, your own guess seems to be as good as any.

During the following week the State Department began sending to interested foreign governments messages recapitulating the peace efforts, surveying for any hopeful response from Hanoi and implying that the bombing would be resumed if none was forthcoming.

It was during this week that the ground fire operations in South Viet Nam halted for their second cease-fire, this for the Jan. 20-23 New Year holiday.

On Jan. 21 a negative report came from Rusk, who had just returned from a quick Asian trip, including a talk with Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin at Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri's funeral in India. Rusk said there had been no "encouraging" response, only "bitter invective" from Hanoi.

Rusk said the Communists appeared to be preparing for a bitter military effort after the New Year lull. During the supposed cease-fire, he reported two days later, the Reds continued their infiltration from the North and made many attacks.

While some foreign governments indicated they hoped for a lengthy bombing halt, conflicting views at home were pressing on the President.

On Jan. 22 senators made public testimony by Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, that "if you stop bombing North Viet Nam, in effect you throw one of your blue chips for negotiation over your shoulder."

On the same day Johnson replied to 76 Democratic House members who had asked him to persevere in his peace offensive. The President said that while the peace effort will continue "the heavy weight of evidence which has accumulated in the last month" indicates continued "aggressiveness" by North Viet Nam.

"It is increasingly clear that we have had only a hostile response to the present pause in bombing," he said.

Johnson summoned congressional leaders to the White House late in the afternoon of Jan. 25. At this secret mission, attended by the government's diplomatic, military and intelligence chiefs, the key legislators were given intelligence reports of a North Vietnamese buildup and infiltration during the bombing lull.

Johnson spoke to the legislators of the agony and loneliness of presidential decision making. He read passages from Bruce Catton's book, "Never Call Retreat," on how President Abraham Lincoln faced divided counsel. He said he would listen to everyone but decide what he felt best. He asked one administration official to make a case for resuming the bombing, another to make the case against.

Of the 20 senior senators and House members present only two, Mansfield and Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., were on the record for continuing the pause. An Associated Press poll of the Senate's 100 members found that of 50 willing to say, 25 senators favored renewing the bombings at this point and 25 were against.

Johnson continued to meet frequently with his top strategists. He sought counsel from friends and prominent citizens outside of government. The debate rolled on.

On Jan. 27, 16 Democratic senators sent the President a letter supporting earlier calls by Mansfield, Fulbright and Sen.

George D. Aikden, R-Vt., for a continuation of the bombing pause.

The senators pleaded for further consultation on the decision whether to resume air strikes.

One of the signers, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., said he did not consider the Aug. 10, 1964, congressional resolution that gave Johnson broad powers to repel armed aggression on U.S. soldiers in Viet Nam "as a general endorsement of our Viet Nam policy."

Johnson dismissed the senators' appeal the next day. He cited the 1964 resolution and said, "I continue to be guided in these matters (Viet Nam policy) by the resolution of Congress."

When parents are O and A, the children are O and A, never B or AB.

What is Addison's Disease?

The adrenal glands lie closely attached to the kidneys. The hormones produced by the adrenal gland are important to many of the vital functions of the body.

The adrenal gland is divided into two parts, the cortex and the medulla. Each part produces a different hormone. Addison's Disease, named after the scientist who first reported it, is a deficiency of the cortex part of the gland.

The hormone manufactured in the cortex of the adrenal is responsible for storage and use of proteins, sugars and fats. It also is involved in the reactions to physical and emotional injury and stresses.

The accumulation of fluids and minerals in the body is related to the normal function of the adrenal glands.

In Addison's Disease there are many diffuse symptoms that interfere with normal activity.

Addison's Disease, one a dreaded one, now can be kept in control by the use of cortisone, one of the major hormones of the adrenal gland.

When blood is coughed up it is always a sign of serious disease?

A cough can originate from a tickle in the back of the throat, from an irritation of the larynx, trachea or the bronchial tubes.

Blood in the sputum can, therefore, come from any of these areas.

A tiny broken blood vessel in the nose, throat and sinuses can trickle down and then be coughed up.

Blood in the sputum can be found in severe bronchitis or pneumonia, tuberculosis and with tumors of the lungs.

In most instances, a small amount of blood coughed up does not suggest serious disease. Nevertheless, the cause of all persistent bleeding must be pursued until it is definitely known. X-rays of the chest with special dyes can reveal important information about the lungs and bronchial structure.

Children with poor speech progress should have their hearing tested.

Best Tranquilizer: Take a Walk

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

In this age of anxiety one out of 12 Americans takes tranquilizers. We also spend about $70 million a year on sleeping pills.

But many doctors think you can calm down just as well—and save money—by just going for a brisk three to five-mile walk.

Before the rise of dentistry, people often went to blacksmiths to get their teeth pulled or treated.

A five-foot electric eel has all its vital organs in the first foot of body length. The other four feet contain nearly 6,000 electrical cells, each of which can generate one-tenth of a volt.

Jesus Christ and his followers spoke and wrote in Aramaic, the language of a nomadic desert people. Ultimately this tongue was displaced by Arabic in biblical lands.

Quotable notables: "Perhaps man, having remade his environment, will turn around at last and begin to remake himself"—Will Durant.

If you have an ulcer, better cut down on those highballs. It has been found that ulcers heal more quickly among those who don't drink.

In bullfighting if you don't die young you can die rich. One of the most unorthodox performers today, Manuel Benitez, known as "El Cordobes" and "the Beatnik Bullfighter," earns an estimated $2 million a year.

The burden of the presidency takes an increasing toll. The U.S. presidents who served in this century averaged 11 years less than their normal life expectancy for the age at which they took office.

A kind of Roman lottery was the forerunner of our St. Valentine's day. Celebrated on Feb. 15, it was called the Feast of Lupercalia. A young Roman man drew blindly from a container the name of an unmarried girl. They became sweethearts for the year, and exchanged gifts.

One out of every six licensed drivers is involved in an accident each year. The chances are, if you drive regularly, you will have some 10 traffic mishaps during your career behind the wheel.

Worth remembering: "You wouldn't worry what people think about you if you knew how seldom they do."

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — This February will start out with two strikes on it — and almost every February is a trying enough month for production, distribution and retail trade.

Many businessmen would be perfectly willing just to skip it.

Weather often snarls industry and transportation and plays hob with store traffic. Retail trade usually is at a crawl anyway, being in the doldrums between the January clearance sales and the spring and Easter shopping promotions.

This February could be even more of a question mark — and a pain.

For one thing, there's the uncertainty of what will happen in Viet Nam — and what that will do to government programs at home and to private business and consumer plans.

For another, there's the doubt raised by the new federal spending policies — more for both military and civilian programs — without any real certainty of steering clear of an inflation which could send the already fast rising cost of living on a real tour.

Then there's the untested new climate on the eve of prosperity's birthday. The last recession hit bottom in February 1961. This February the economy is due to get set for its sixth year of climb.

But suddenly the atmosphere is changed. Government officials talk more now of restraining speculation and inflation, where for five years they talked only of stimulating economic growth.

Businessmen talk now of shortages of skilled labor here and there, when a year ago they were talking of the hard core of unemployment — now pretty well dissolved.

Factory managers talk of shortages of some materials — and soaring prices — and of attempted price increases which the government won't allow.

February might also see the hardening of battle lines between the government and some union leaders over the wage guidelines. Washington wants to hold wage increases down to keep from pushing prices up.

Also, for many a citizen is the current wonderment about what is going on down in Wall Street. When will the stock market get off dead center and start moving definitely one way or the other? And what is the meaning of all that heavy trading in a trend?

Right now, your own guess seems to be as good as any.

Congressman William H. Harsha, Ohio 6th District, again blasted the Johnson Administration for its total indifference and lack of true concern for the welfare of the needy and those required to live on fixed incomes and pensions.

Last week, the Ohio lawmaker sharply criticized the Administration for its pretext of concern for the plight of the needy and aged and then calling upon them to pay increased taxes in the form of an excise tax on telephone service. The Congressman had stressed the vital necessity of the telephone service for the aged and less fortunate and pointed out the fact that the tax would hit hardest those who could least afford it.

Congressman Harsha charged that President Johnson's budget proves that he is only giving lip service to being concerned with the welfare of the poor. Harsha had called upon the Administration to reduce its foreign aid requests instead of levying a tax on the use of telephones. He noted that the budget calls for increasing foreign aid from 3.9 billion this year to 4.4 billion in Fiscal 1967. "This increase in foreign aid is almost as much as the telephone tax would bring into the Federal treasury," he said.

"It is apparent," the Congressman continued, "that this Administration is not as concerned with the less fortunate citizens here at home as it is with our foreign neighbors."

"Added to this," the Ohio lawmaker said, "the President requested funds for an additional 175,000 civilian Federal employees. With an average Civil Service employee receiving in excess of $6,400 a year, these additional employees, and facilities, will cost more than double the amount that would be raised by the imposition of the telephone tax."

"This is proof that the Administration is more interested in building a political empire of Federal employees than it is in helping the needy and those required to live on fixed incomes. By these actions, this Administration is indeed waging war against the poverty stricken rather than for them," Harsha concluded.

Major Spangler Participates in Field Exercise

Army Major Lyman M. Spangler, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Spangler of 218 S. Scioto St., participated in "Exercise Silver Talon", a 15-day field training exercise conducted in Germany.

Purposes of the exercise were to provide the 3rd Armored Division intensive training in command and control procedures against an aggressor force, and to further train the division to support itself logistically. Approximately 20,000 troops participated.

The exercise is part of the year - round training program the 3rd Armored conducts to insure maximum combat readiness.

Major Spangler, assigned to the 6th Battalion of the division's 40th Artillery near Hanau, entered the army in January of 1952. He is a 1951 graduate of Circleville High School and attended Baylor University in Temple, Tex.

Red China's professed fear of war with America is beginning to sound more genuine, as if reflecting fear that Peking will provoke a U.S. attack — and perhaps a nuclear attack.

All the evidence indicates China expects that the United States sooner or later must get out of Viet Nam, and that in the long run the Communists will dominate all Indochina. It does not want to pay a heavy price, yet the Peking leadership seems afraid the United States eventually will run out of patience.

This apprehension may account for notes of anger and frustration in pronouncements from Peking which suggest the Chinese leadership feels isolated and in danger. Indeed, there are hints that some elements of the Chinese armed forces sought a measure of insurance by means of an approach to Moscow toward reconciliation, so that Moscow's nuclear power might serve as a protection.

If there was such a move, it failed. The Chinese Communist party again has slammed the door, blowing the whistle on any among the Red army brass who might have been thinking that way.

Peking has been paying strict attention to the debates going on in Washington between the "hawks and doves." It expects the "hawks" to prevail and to see the war in Viet Nam extended to Laos and perhaps all of Indochina. It seemingly would consider any U.S. movement in that direction to be an immediate threat to China's own security.

Even if the Chinese leaders feel alone and in danger, they will have none of the Russians. A statement read to a Chinese armed forces conference on political work warned against the "erosion of revisionism and bourgeois ideology of all descriptions" and reasserted the "absolute leadership of the party over the army."

Revisionism is the Chinese epithet for a Soviet policy which Peking now says aggravates the chances of a Chinese-American war because the Soviet leaders, in its view, are busily engaged in helping "the U.S. imperialists."

The statement, delivered by Hsiao Hua, director of the army's general political department, emphasized principles laid down by Defense Minister Lin Piao on how the armed forces should be run.

Lin, while primarily a military man, is the Communist party's top representative in the armed forces. He has thus passed the word that the party will not stand for any attempt by any military element to make policy or to hold out a tentative hand to the Russians. Lin succeeded Peng Teh Huai as defense minister in 1959, after Peng had advocated making up with Moscow and reliance on Soviet military-technical help.

A dominating theme in Peking propaganda is the danger of war. As a broadcast in the Cantonese language put it, "We are planning all our tasks on the basis of the assumption that U.S. imperialism will forcibly impose a war on us."

Peking accuses Moscow of collaborating with other countries in "a new anti-China campaign." So far as the Chinese leaders are concerned, the Russians are guilty of what Peking calls "the three shams." Those are sham opposition to imperialism, sham support for world revolution, and sham unity."

Peking contends the Soviet leaders forget that "war is the highest form of class struggle and a continuation of politics." The Russians, in the Peking view, should be all-out supporters of all revolutionary wars. Instead, the Chinese imply, Moscow is leaving them all alone with whatever risks are involved in pursuing the highest form of class struggle, in which China is opposed by the United States.

"Armed with the thinking of Mao Tze-tung, closely linked with the people throughout the country and throughout the world, we shall be more than a match for such a thing as U.S. imperialism, and final victory certainly will be ours."

This sort of wolf-at-the-door talks could have several purposes. One might be to provide an excuse to get more production with less complaint out of the Chinese people. Another might be to bolster Peking's own morale and confidence in the face of the nightmare it has conjured up for itself.

alone with whatever risks are involved in pursuing the highest form of class struggle, in which China is opposed by the United States.

"Armed with the thinking of Mao Tse-tung, closely linked with the people throughout the country and throughout the world, we shall be more than a match for such a thing as U.S. imperialism, and final victory certainly will be ours."

This sort of wolf-at-the-door talks could have several purposes. One might be to provide an excuse to get more production with less complaint out of the Chinese people. Another might be to bolster Peking's own morale and confidence in the face of the nightmare it has conjured up for itself.

New Outdoor Play Equipment Is Beneficial

By ELEANOR ROSS

Play - time has gained considerably in importance since Mother and Dad were youngsters. Gone with those days are the chores children used to do: chopping wood, pumping water or shoveling coal. And how many of today's youngsters ever climb flights of stairs or even walk to school?

Modern work - saving and living conditions and conveniences are making exercise old-fashioned, if not obsolete.

That this lack of exertion is having an adverse effect on children's growth has been recognized as a major problem by the President's Committee on Physical Fitness.

Now, parents are beginning to realize they must contribute increasingly to the child's physical, as well as his mental, development.

Psychologists and educators have joined with manufacturer to create outdoor play equipment that will enable youngsters of various ages to exercise their bodies as well as their imaginations and social attitudes.

This equipment is not just a haphazard assortment of miscellaneous designs. Their construction is based on modern knowledge of children's physical development, ability to coordinate and growth patterns.

Nesting bridges of galvanized steel offer children the opportunity of arranging the basic units into a variety of combinations to suit their imagination. Ladders, slides and tumbling bars can be converted into climbing horses, wagons, tents, space ships and loading platforms. Whatever the youngsters create, they derive from it much needed exercise.

Steel also provides a plethora of castle towers, squirrels' nests, spiders' webs and an assortment of climbers. These models are fashioned of corrosion resistant galvanized steel, tubing which is virtually maintenance free.

In addition, they are practically impervious to the rough handling they get over the years - and kids can certainly punish almost any type of equipment. Today's parents - remembering their days in the jungle gym perhaps - may not recognize from their own youth much of the equipment their youngsters enjoy.

There's the tubular steel twister swing. Adjustable in length, it spins or swings to suit a child's fancy.

A four - seat whirlwind is a modern self - propelled version of the old merry-go-round.

The rock-it is a teeter-totter that the youngsters can safely manipulate while standing, and the high ride is a see - saw that accommodates three playmates, the third seated high in the center.

With so many of today's children deprived of woods, streams and other natural play settings, parents have to provide the proper facilities to make sure their children develop to their fullest physical and mental growth potential.

Dear Abby: You Can't Criticize Dad

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My father is the most stubborn man in the world. Nobody can tell him anything. He had seat belts put in our car as soon as they came out, and he gave us kids a big long lecture on how we should always use them, but he never uses them himself. When I tell him he forgot to fasten his seat belt, he says he is going only a short distance and it doesn't pay to bother. I have tried to tell him that it takes only a few seconds to fasten a seat belt and it might save his life, but he gets mad at me for speaking up to him. He has a very ugly temper, and I have to be careful what I say to him or I'll end up with a fat lip. How can a 14-year-old boy tell his father to practice what he preaches?

FOURTEEN

DEAR FOURTEEN: Tell him that the National Safety Council estimates that most automobile accidents occur within 25 miles of the victims' homes. But don't tell him to practice what he preaches or you're apt to get a "belt" in the chops.

DEAR ABBY: My in-laws' religion is against smoking, drinking and playing cards. Ours is not. In the evening we will have a cigarette, and perhaps a drink. And if we have company, we will play cards. His parents never call, they just drop in unexpectedly, which puts us in an embarrassing spot. My husband expects me and our guests to hide the drinks and cards. I think this is wrong. Do you think I should do as my husband asks and live this falsehood?

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Your in-laws surely must know that your religion does not prohibit smoking, drinking and card-playing. And if they don't, it is time they did. "Hiding" the evidence, as your husband asks, is degrading and deceitful. And he is probably not getting away with it anyway.

DEAR ABBY: We have been married since last August and we are still living with my mother-in-law. I have painted two apartments and my wife wouldn't move into either one of them. She just won't leave her mother. We are expecting in a couple of months. I love her, Abby, and she says she loves me. I want to live alone with my own new family. What do you advise?

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Unless your wife leaves her mother voluntarily to make a home for you, it won't be much of a home. She is still her mother's little girl, and may need some professional counseling to fit her for the role of wife and mother. The Family Service Association provides this kind of counseling. See them.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THE PATIENT'S RELATIVE": If you want to help him, let him know that you are confident that he is capable of recovering. Offer no suggestions. To tell a person who is undergoing psychiatric treatment that all he needs to get well is "common sense," and that permitting his doctor to probe into his early, unhappy childhood is causing his depression, could do the patient more harm than good. Do not undermine the patient's confidence in his doctor. Simply let him know that you "believe in him," love him, and admire him for his courageous fight to get well.

Scioto Downs Announces Top Challenge Stakes Field

The 1966 night harness racing does not open at Scioto Downs until May 27, but a new record has already been set with the new year only a month old.

A total of 605 trotters and pacers are eligible to the six divisions of the 1966 Scioto Downs Challenge Stakes compared to 509 in the 1965 stake events. When the final mail was delivered after the January 15th closing date, 409 two-year-olds were nominated to Challenge Stakes Number Five; 134 three-year-olds were sustained in Challenge Stakes Number Four; 62 four-year-olds were sustained in Challenge Stakes Number Three.

Practically every top racing stable throughout Ohio and the nation are represented in Challenge Stakes Number Five. The royally bred juveniles came from Ohio based stables of Dick Buxton at Urbana, Curly Smart in Delaware, Bob Farrington of Richmond, Sam Coil and Eddie Boyer of Washington C. H., the Car-Lith Stable of Springfield, and the Jim Hackett stable from Cincinnati, to name just a few.

Nationally ranked stables represented in the two-year-old division of the Challenge Stakes include Bruce Nickells, George Sholtz, Joe O'Brien, and Walter Michael.

Heading a select list of 69 three-year-old pacers in Challenge Stakes Number Four is the brilliant True Duane. Owned by Richard Oldfield of Sylvania, this blistering brown son of Duane Hanover at Lexington, Ky., last fall packed the mile in 1:59 1-5, the third fastest mile ever posted by a two-year-old in a race.

Last year's two-year-old pacing division was won by Texan Hanover, a powerful son of Tar Heel. Trained and driven by Sonny Dancer, Texan Hanover will return in this year's three-year-old division. Now Hear This from the Red Sheep Stable who won the first elimination heat last year in 2:03 will be back and Bank Time from the Gene Riegler stable will return, as well as many other potential three-year-old pacing stars.

The three-year-old trotting division of the Challenge Stakes is wide open. There were 65 three-year-olds kept eligible with the Jan. 15 payment and any one of the select field can trot up a storm. Among the outstanding diagonal gaiters is Herbert Scotch, who won last year's two-year-old trotting division, reined by the talented Eddie Boyer.

Washington C. H. will be well represented. The successful Fayette County horseman, Sam Coil, kept his crack trotter, Gay Sam, eligible. This bay son of Sampson Hanover streaked to a mile in 2:05 2-5 last year.

Challenge Stakes Number Three for four-year-olds looms as one of the greatest racing events ever scheduled. Only a conflict of dates can keep the greatest field of pacers from converging on Scioto Downs this summer.

The four-year-old pacing division scheduled for June 25, attracted 25 eligibles including Bret Hanover, Tuxedo Hanover, Bullet Van, Lind's Girl, Scarlet Wave, Gee Lee Hanover, Dwyer Hanover, and Ambro Frank. June 25 is also the date of the American National in Chicago.

The four-year-old trotting division, scheduled June 17, is headed by Mighty Victory who posted a mile in 2:00 1-5 for the talented Dick Buxton last year. Be Sweet reined by Jim Hackett, Fortune Teller, owned by Jim Wiggins of Columbus, and Near Me from the Joe O'Brien stable.

Hall of Fame Opens Doors For Stengel

NEW YORK (AP) —The door to Baseball's Hall of Fame has been thrown open for the immediate entrance of Casey Stengel former player, manager and, a 75, still the sport's outstanding ambassador.

Stengel found out he would be eligible without the usual five-year waiting period when Ford Frick, who has just retired as baseball commissioner, revealed at the baseball writers dinner Sunday night that the Hall of Fame Oldtimers' Committee has changed its rules.

Stengel sat on the dais as Frick spoke of the new rules and made obvious reference to Stengel without mentioning his name by looking down the table and quipping:

"This is not an announcement of election — but the gates are open."

The gates were opened by the simple expedient of waiving the usual five-year waiting period after retirement. Now the waiting period will be a mere six months for all retired baseball personnel, players, managers and officials, 65 or over.

There are seven lettermen on Lehigh University's varsity fencing squad.

Akron's Mighty Zippers Fall Apart

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Coach Tony Laterza must still be wondering what happened to his highly touted Akron basketball team last week.

The Zips appeared to have a firm hold on the 15-member Ohio Conference until disaster struck — on the road.

The initial shock came last Tuesday when Baldwin-Wallace handed Akron its first OC loss, 88-85. Saturday night, lowly Muskingum, with a 4-9 seasonal mark, applied the second jolt, a 73-72 upset that dropped the Zips all the way to third place.

The foundering Akronites have a chance to make amends Thursday when first-place Mount Union (7-1) comes to town.

The first place Purple Raiders vaulted to the top spot by spanking Oberlin 86-80 on the strength of 54 per cent shooting from the floor.

Four Lifters Compete at Zanesville

Only four lifters represented the Circleville Barbell Club Sunday in the high school championship held at Zanesville Rosecrans School, but they brought home three places.

Phil Grubb earned first in the 125-pound class, setting a club record in the clean and jerk with a 155-pound lift. He won by 20 pounds, bringing his record to two victories and one second.

Ed Baker, in his first olympic meet, beat out five other lifters to take third in the 150-pound class. He had the high press in his call of 160 pounds.

John Funk won his second meet in a row. Weighing 163 pounds, Funk took the lead with a 200-pound press and went on to win handily. Wayne Glover placed third in the 165-pound class, just five pounds out of second. Only one lifter is allowed per class.

JIM BENJAMIN of Columbus was the outstanding lifter of the meet.

Rosecrans finished first in the meet with 29 points. Wheelstone was second with 20, Circleville third with 14, Hartley fourth with five, Delaware fifth with four and North sixth with one.

The next high school meet will be held Mar. 6 in Zanesville.

A power lift meet in scheduled Feb. 26 in the 4-H and Grange Building here. Les Cramer, instructor for the Circleville Barbell club, served as an official and assisted with the announcing at yesterday's meet.

Ohio State (7-7) got 26 points from Ron Sepic and 23 rebounds from Bill Hosket but had to scramble before disposing of pesky Hardin-Simmons 72-64.

It was the Buckeyes last non-conference tiff of the season. Coach Fred Taylor's crew, tied for fifth in the Big Ten with a 1-3 mark, plays Wisconsin tonight.

Cincinnati (14-3) stumbled at St. Louis 73-64 and fell to 4-2 in the Missouri Valley Conference but the Bearcats are still a contender.

Two other top Buckeye schools suffered setbacks as Kentucky Wesleyan rolled over Steubenville 93-83 and Gannon, Pa., stunned Central State 73-59.

Youngstown (13-1) kept rolling with 92-64 romp over Susquehanna; Xavier outtraced Memphis State 110-107; Mike Tammon delivered 22 points and Ken Fowlkes hit a jump shot at the buzzer in Ohio University's 67-65 Mid-American Conference decision over Kent State; Toledo fell 17 back and then came within three before losing to Virginia Tech 91-77 and Kenyon set a school scoring record by beating Wabash 98-79.

In others, Hiram, behind Jim Warstler's 35 points, shaded Ohio Wesleyan 88-82; Marietta got 37 from Dick Sower and whipped Baldwin-Wallace 95-90; Ashland rallied to stop Malone 70-59; Cedarville nipped Franklin 94-92 and Findlay clouted Detroit Business 103-88.

The Circleville Wrestling team finished a disappointing last Saturday in the Pleasant View Invitational tournament.

The Tigers were without contestants in four of the weight classes. Craig Benzenberg and Tom Fletcher didn't make their weights, according to Dave LaBounty, CHS coach.

In the 138-pound class, the Tiger contestant did not show up and Circleville's heavyweight became scholastically ineligible at the end of the second semester.

A third place finish was the best posted by any of the Tigers. Jim Campbell, in the 154 pound class, drew a bye in the first round, was decided by Crystal of Worthington, 5-1, in his second, and then beat Saffee of Walnut Ridge, 2-1, in his third.

Undefeated Texas
Western, Kentucky
Face Vital Contests

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The home court in college basketball usually is worth something, which could be just enough to wipe out this week the only two perfect records among major teams.

Second-ranked Kentucky, 14-0, travels to Vanderbilt Wednesday night to play the fourth-ranked Commodores, and sixth-ranked Texas Western, also 14-0, heads for Fort Collins, Colo., and a game with Colorado State U. Friday night.

Each team won its 14th at home Saturday night, Kentucky crushing Auburn 115-78 and Texas Western whipping West Texas 69-50.

Kentucky defeated Vanderbilt on the Wildcats' court 96-83 a couple of weeks ago, but the return contest could be a lot different.

The Commodores, 15-2, haven't lost in 10 games at home this season, and another victory could put them on top of the Southeastern Conference race. The Wildcats, on the other hand, have won all five games they've played on the other team's court.

Both teams have warm-up games tonight, Kentucky hosting Alabama and Vanderbilt at home in Nashville, Tenn., against Auburn.

Of Texas Western's 14 games, only one has been played on the other team's court. In that one, the Miners defeated Arizona State 84-67.

In last Saturday's action the first eight of the Top Ten teams played while Kansas and UCLA rested. Two of the teams lost, Dayton trimming fifth-ranked St. Joseph's 79-76 and St. Louis defeating Cincinnati, No. 8, 73-64.

Glider Torian's tap in with 35 seconds to play was the winning basket for Dayton while Bobby Coles sank three straight baskets and passed off to two more in a second-half spurt that sparked St. Louis past Cincinnati.

Top-ranked Duke won its 13th straight, defeating North Carolina State 84-77. The Blue Devils pulled out the Atlantic Coast Conference triumph in the last five minutes after the game had been tied 17 times.

Providence, No. 3, came from 10 points behind for an 80-67 victory over Niagara as Jimmy Walker scored 30 points, and Clyde Lee scored 24 points in Vanderbilt's 98-66 triumph over Louisiana State.

Seventh-ranked Loyola of Chicago completed the victories among the Top Ten, beating Kansas State 76-70. Sub Frank Perez put the Ramblers ahead to stay 70-68 with a tap in.

Besides Cincinnati, two other Missouri Valley Conference contenders lost. Wichita handed visiting Tulsa its first MVC defeat 87-72, and host Louisville trounced Bradley 103-71.

Michigan avoided its first Big Ten setback, edging Wisconsin 69-67, Wake Forest upset Davidson 82-80 on Jim Boshart's three-point play in overtime, and West Virginia came from 16 points back for an 85-81 victory over Furman.

Princeton took over sole possession of first place in the Ivy League, defeating previously undefeated Penn 75-68 while Yale upset host Columbia 88-69.

Highway Patrol Aids 80,000 Tourists in '65

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Highway Patrol assisted more than 80,000 stranded motorists during 1965, Supt. Robert M. Chiaramonte reports.

The colonel said there was a 32 per cent increase over the previous year in number of drivers of disabled vehicles who got help from patrolmen.

Where Is Old Realism?

By John Chamberlain

When Lyndon Johnson was boss of the U. S. Senate, he had an exquisitely tuned sense of realism. He knew when Wayne Morse, the wild man of Oregon, could be driven in tandem with, say, Dick Russell of Georgia. He knew how to alter a phrase in a bill to win a kingdom. As Tommy Corcoran of New Deal days fame said of the old con-juror, "If a vote is needed, Lyndon can find it in a rathole."

The Presidency, however, seems to be doing something to veil the eyes of the old master. He is pressing too hard to clinch victories that he has already won, and he is neglecting to push at some barriers that are ready for toppling.

The change was apparent in the emphases of his State of the Union message. There was all that strain to assure the liberal community that even if he had to mastermind an accelerated war in Southeast Asia, there would be no important diminution in the push to the Great Society. The net effect of this was to scare half the people into thinking that we are on the threshold of terrifying deficiency appropriations which will lead to a bad inflation, while the other half was frightened into thinking that we must cut and run in South Vietnam in order to save up enough money to purify the Hudson River and rebuild thirty major cities.

The old Lyndon Johnson wouldn't have risked the confusion and the dispiriting cross-arguments that have resulted from promising to get a million-and-one extra things out of an economy that is already employing just about everybody who is capable of adding to the Gross National Product. Realism would have impelled the President to say that, since mass unemployment was disappearing, many of the problems of 1964 and early 1965 were vanishing, too. In other words, many of the Great Society goals were being brought within the reach of individuals for the simple reason that they now had money in their pockets to pay for the what they needed, including beautifying their yards to please Lady Bird.

The old Lyndon would have taken all the credit in the world for the current prosperity. He would have gone on from there to congratulate the teen-agers who had found jobs. Addressing himself to the school drop-outs among them, he would have advised them to spend some of their new wages on make-up courses in night school, warning them against the day when the job market might shrink.

And he would have said something reassuring about the advantage accruing to the Federal budget when businesses are in a position to recruit and train their own work forces without asking for government assistance.

The old Lyndon Johnson would have had a word to say about the easing of the civil rights problem that must come when jobs are plentiful. He would have pointed to the experience of President Jerome Holland of Hampton Institute, one of the older Negro colleges. Just six years ago, says Holland, "we had six major corporations recruiting our graduates. Last year, we had 150 corporations on our campus recruiting our graduates. And in 1966 we expect over 200. The youngster in chemistry, for many years, either went into medical school or perhaps he was drained off into graduate school. But now, this youngster is thinking about Dow Chemical, DuPont, and Union Carbide. It's a wonderful feeling to an old-timer like myself to walk into an airport and see one of my students. I'll ask him, 'What are you doing in the airport? Are you going home?' 'Oh, no Dr. Holland,' he'll say, 'I'm going out to California to be interviewed by Kaiser Aluminum.' Things really look good!"

With a Negro educator talking that way, the old Lyndon Johnson would still have called for more money for Operation Headstart in the slums. But he would also have noted that the government need concern itself less with providing jobs for the talented.

As for Secretary of Labor Wirtz's mean-spirited drive on foreign agricultural labor, the old Lyndon would have told him to relax and let the Mexicans take the farm jobs. This would permit native-born Americans to go to the factories, where they are needed.

Thinking it over, Lyndon Johnson didn't tell us about the real state of the union. Could be that his mind was on 1935 and the days of the WPA.

Discarded NFL Pilots Gain New Posts in Rival AFL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

George Wilson and Wally Lemm, who lost their head coaching jobs in the National Football League under controversial circumstances, have jumped over to the rival American League and left the St. Louis Cardinals as the lone pro football team without a coach.

Wilson, who won the NFL championship with the 1957 Detroit Lions, severed a 29-year connection with the National League as a player and coach when he signed a three-year contract with the new Miami Dolphins of the AFL Saturday.

Wilson hopped leagues almost simultaneously with Lemm, who rejoined the Houston club he took to AFL championship in 1962. In so doing Lemm takes on the most precarious assignment in pro football, becoming the club's sixth coach in seven years.

The Wilson and Lemm hirings left only the Cardinals' job open. The AFL roster now is filled with Joel Collier having replaced Lou Saban at Buffalo, Lemm taking over for Bones

Taylor at Houston and Wilson becoming Miami's first coach.

The NFL line-up has undergone four changes since the season ended with Otto Graham replacing Bill McPeak at Washington, George Allen succeeding Harlan Svare at Los Angeles, Bill Austin taking over for Mike Nixon at Pittsburgh and Norb Hecker becoming Atlanta's first coach.

Wilson compiled a 54-45-6 record at Detroit, including winning the NFL title in 1957, but became involved in an unusual set of circumstances after the 1964 season when owner William Clay Ford fired all of his assistants although offering Wilson a new contract.

Wilson, however, decided he would have trouble controlling his staff because of the situation and resigned. Last year he was with Washington as an assistant under McPeak and supposedly had been in line for the Redskins' job.

Lemm compiled a 27-26-3 record at St. Louis after joining the club in 1963 when he gave up the Houston job while Frank (Pop) Ivy, who had been with the Cardinals, went to the Oilers in an unofficial inter-league swap.

Lemm left his job with the Cardinals in a squabble with the owners, who said Lemm and the club had come to a mutual agreement to sever relations. Lemm, however, insisted he had been fired with 17 months remaining on his contract.

Milwaukee Antitrust Suit Pushed

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Milwaukee, the Cinderella of baseball who discovered her prince was footloose and unfaithful, pressed today for an antitrust verdict against the National League before the Braves' scheduled opening day in Atlanta April 12.

Atty. Gen. Bronson C. La Follette has asked Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller to move the trial date forward to no later than Feb. 21.

Roller ordered attorneys for the league and the Braves to appear at a court hearing today to present any arguments against an early trial.

The National League had announced Friday it would ignore Roller's court order that it be prepared to keep the Braves in Milwaukee this year and be prepared to expand beyond the present 10 teams should the judge hand down such an eventual verdict.

The owners voted unanimously to instruct the Braves to proceed with plans to play in Atlanta after 13 seasons in Milwaukee, the city they were once before blocked from abandoning by a court order.

"Open defiance," La Follette said of the league's action. "More harassment." League President Warren Giles said Sunday after the latest court hearing was set.

Taylor at Houston and Wilson becoming Miami's first coach.

The NFL line-up has undergone four changes since the season ended with Otto Graham replacing Bill McPeak at Washington, George Allen succeeding Harlan Sware at Los Angeles, Bill Austin taking over for Mike Nixon at Pittsburgh and Norb Hecker becoming Atlanta's first coach.

Wilson compiled a 54-45-6 record at Detroit, including winning the NFL title in 1957, but became involved in an unusual set of circumstances after the 1964 season when owner William Clay Ford fired all of his assistants although offering Wilson a new contract.

Wilson, however, decided he would have trouble controlling his staff because of the situation and resigned. Last year he was with Washington as an assistant under McPeak and supposedly had been in line for the Redskins' job.

Lemm compiled a 27-26-3 record at St. Louis after joining the club in 1963 when he gave up the Houston job while Frank (Pop) Ivy, who had been with the Cardinals, went to the Oilers in an unofficial inter-league swap.

Lemm left his job with the Cardinals in a squabble with the owners, who said Lemm and the club had come to a mutual agreement to sever relations. Lemm, however, insisted he had been fired with 17 months remaining on his contract.

With a Negro educator talking that way, the old Lyndon Johnson would still have called for more money for Operation Headstart in the slums. But he would also have noted that the government need concern itself less with providing jobs for the talented.

As for Secretary of Labor Wirtz's mean - spirited drive on foreign agricultural labor, the old Lyndon would have told him to relax and let the Mexicans take the farm jobs. This would permit native - born Americans to go to the factories, where they are needed.

Thinking it over, Lyndon Johnson didn't tell us about the real state of the union. Could be that his mind was on 1935 and the days of the WPA.

Although government regulations call for the necessity of packing only 80% Grade A eggs in a Grade A package, Kroger packs as close to 100% Grade A eggs as humanly possible. This is costly, but Kroger bears this cost and insures the customer of a constant Grade A pack. One of the innovations of Kroger Quality Control was to establish a very stringent set of QUALITY SPECIFICATIONS for eggs. This was practically unheard of and still is not common practice in the industry.
